Vessel Given Up.

Sch. Maud Moulton, built at Lunenburg about a year ago, has been given up as lost. She was a fine vessel of about 100 tons and took a cargo of fish from Burgeo, N. F., to Oporto. Then she loaded a return cargo of salt and sailed for Newfoundland, but has not since been heard of. It is about four months since she sailed from Oporto.

[Lucky Catch.

Saturday before last Fred Swim and others fishing for halibut nine miles off Cape Sable lost a trawl by parting, without a buoy to mark the place. The following Wednesday they went out in what seemed to people the vain hope of recovering it. As near the spot as they could judge they set another trawl across its range and at the first pull brought up the trawl which had a live halibut on it, weighing 231 pounds. This was probably the luckiest set ever made.
